

As a shareholde in XOXO I am dismayed to say the least that a buyout of this type without bankruptcy proceedings that totally wipes out the common shareholder would be allowed to go through. If all the bondholders were given shares this company still has a substantial cash position and could survive. The shareholders still own the company and need to be protcted.